

SONDE TO MARS

17/10/1999

By any chance have you seen in the News that a radio sonde has been sent successfully around Mars?

I was rather astonished that this was allowed due to the Bases that I described in my reports about Mars and the Moon.

For my reader's information I write this note.

Few days after this "astonishing" success, the machine came too near Mars, and crashed. The reason for it, given in the media, was that scientists have made a mistake, some calculating in the metrical system, others in the English way, using feet and inches!

It seems that the ones giving as the "news" think that we are total idiots, and will believe anything they feel as feeding us with. Also, there has been astonishing little publicity about the whole affair even though it was a costly one.

As you may know, there were many different attempts to make better researches on Mars, but there were always insurmountable difficulties. The taxpayer's money has been used, as usual, with no real results.

Well, the only reason for all this failures is that the Alien Bases are very easy to see. They are made without much cover up, as they never expected us to come and visit them!
